Larse inclinities turk deep in the ear hawhers the temperature is thousaid, of degrees, and gradually melt their way to the surface above them. Generally they issue in the form of transactions domes of but rock, towerme up to mountain heights and often giving birth to volcanoes. When a batholite, as sometimes bappens, does not reach the surface its roof opens in a network of desures, lava pours out and a whole group of volcanous appears at that point.

Suess has recognized the remnins of many cooled batbolites on various parts of the earth's surface, and be ays that the consolidated crust of the earth, even at the present day, may be exposed to these mighty intrusions from below. The batholites bring up with them many metals from the interior of the planet, and rich mines are often opened in the dikes that are thus formed.

Suess describes the rock about Boulder, Colo., as an ancient batholite. which covers 5,000 square kilometers of surface. But there are others still more prodigious in extent.

Sometimes they have been wern down nearly to the general level, but near Eikhorn the old batholite yet towers up to an elevation of 9,000 feet above the sea. The diamond dikes of South Africa have thus been thrust up from the profound depths of the earth. where there exists a laboratory of unture in which she performs what seem miracles to the petty inhabitants of the planet's surface.

The face of the moon shows us most clearly what batholites are capable of. The vast circular plains ringed with steep mountains, which make its surface so marvelous to look upon with a telescope, have, according to this view, been formed by intrusious of colossal batholites, and Suess calls them by the startling name of "smelting furnaces"-furnaces thousands of square miles in extent-in which the frame of that little world has been melted and dissolved like a snow bank lying in the path of a flow of molten iron.

And if we could remove the sedimentary accumulations of ages from the face of our world, says this astonishing German savant, we might find now hidden under our feet a network of the seared skeletous of ancient batholites, grander than any on the moon!-Garrett P. Serviss in New Von Moltke's Simplicity.

Once while traveling General Moltke entered a small Swiss hotel, and as the head waiter saw his gaunt figure stalking in, wrapped in a wornout, dusty cloak, carrying an old leather satchel he measured his wealth by his looks and ordered his assistant to show him to a small room in the uppermost story. As he was making himself comfortable in the attic another assistant came, as is customary there, to ask the silent stranger his name and rank. The consequence was that a few minutes later the proprietor, in full dress, appeared at the door of the attic to inform his excellency that a better room had just been vacated.

"Give that to my servant," replied riage. This is good enough for me." And he remained.

James E. Johnson, plaintiff, vs. Ethel Johnson, defendant.

Now at this day comes the plaintiff herein, by his attorney, David B Hays and files his petition and affidayit, alleging, among other, things, that defendant, Ethel Johnson, has concealed herself and is not a resident of the State of Missouri, so that the ordinary process of law can not be erved upon her within this State.

Whereupon, it is ordered by the clerk, that said defendant be notified by publication that plaintiff has commenced a suit against her in this court, the object and general nature of which is to obtain a decree of divorce from the bonds of matrimony existing between plaintiff and defendant upon the following grounds to-wit: that defendant Ethel Johnson has absented herself without a reasonable cause for the space of one year, and that unless the said Ethel Johnson be and appear at this court, at the next term thereof, to be begun and holden at the court house in the city of Jackson, in said county, on the 15th day of August next, and on or before the first day of said term, unless further time be granted by the court-answer or demur to the petition in said cause, the same will be taken as confessed, and judgment will be rendered accordingly

And it is further ordered, that a copy hereof be published according to law, in the Jackson Herald, a newspaper published in said county of Medicy, Jno. S., guardian, Robt.
